

Alexis Juday-Marshall has been a National Board member of the League of Women Voters (LWV) since 2022. She first joined the Washington State League of Women Voters in 2018, where she was an active member of the Observer Corps, a program that promotes government transparency and accountability. As a Climate Action Guide and Co-Chair of the Environmental Committee of King County/Seattle, she worked with local officials and fellow League members to increase public engagement on climate change issues. Alexis also represented the LWVUS as a Delegate at the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP26) in Glasgow, Scotland, and COP28 in Dubai, UAE, this December. Additionally, as a member of the Washington State DEI Working Committee, she contributed to updating LWV policies and programs to remove barriers to participation for underrepresented groups and identified potential partnerships with diverse, nonpartisan organizations. She now serves as Co-Chair of the LWVUS DEI Committee and a member of the External Affairs Committee.

Originally from Portland, Oregon, Alexis recently moved to Los Angeles after living in Seattle for 23 years. Passionate about social change, she earned a bachelor's degree in Journalism and a master's degree in Public Administration from Seattle University, with her graduate studies focusing on inequity and systems change in voting rights, transportation policy, and climate change. Her master's thesis, "Addressing the Climate Change Crisis: Indigenous Perspectives for Environmental Justice," reflects her commitment to environmental advocacy.

Professionally, Alexis is a Grant Writer at SecondMuse, an innovation company focused on building economies that benefit people and the planet. In this role, she supports proposal development efforts to secure resources for advancing the company's impact-driven programs.

In her free time, Alexis is active in advocacy and nonprofit volunteer work. She enjoys traveling, reading, cooking, and spending time with her fiancé and dog, Nugget. A dedicated sports fan and animal enthusiast, she continues to find ways to merge her passions with her commitment to social and environmental justice.
